“In a good bookroom you feel in some mysterious way that you are absorbing the wisdom contained in all the books through your skin, without even opening them.”

Green Libraries: a much awaited initiative

Dr. Rajesh Kr. Bhardwaj
Librarian, FORE School of Management New Delhi

Introduction

Library is a place where universal knowledge of human kind stocks. It is a place which is full of rich resources related to culture, history, science, technology, medicine, astronomy, and all areas of knowledge. The librarian is the custodian of large amount of these resources and role of today’s librarian has been diversified with the use of ICT and web sciences. They need to pace with the time and make a balance between traditional and modern approach in archiving and dissemination of harvested knowledge. They must focus on impact of libraries on environment by constant watch on cutting edge technology, architecture and design, researching, web tools and even day to day eco-friendly activities. They must educate not only their readers but also educate nearby general public which directly or indirectly related to libraries.

We must join hands with Government of India’s “स्वच्छ भारत अभियान” and launch a movement “स्वच्छ पुस्तकालय अभियान”. What a library and library professional can contribute towards this mission or “अभियान” through our noble profession.
General Cleaning of Library
We should maintain library a clean and green place and ensure hygienic environment for all. We should have daily cleaning, dusting and vacuuming all corners, walls, roofs of each sections of the library. A good library needs to have a regular inspection to treat termite, fungus, etc. to protect the valuable resources. We suggest placing three types of dustbins separately for three types of wastages, i.e., Blue for paper & cardboard; Yellow for recyclable containers and Red for all other rubbish. We may encourage library users to throw rubbish away into the bins provided, so that everyone can enjoy a clean and safe study, reading and research space.

Basic Principles of Eco-friendship
First of all, we should follow these fundamental principles (SURE);
1. Sustainability: Libraries must ensure systems remain diverse and productive with the four interconnected un-detachable domains: ecology, economics, management and culture.
2. Use & Recycling: The library uses many disposable items, i.e., cans & bottles, paper, printer cartridges, etc. Either we should use less items and recycle used items or sell to only those vendors who can recycle these items. We should also re-use the items like, Bags & Mugs, etc. and buy the recycled items.
3. Reduction: We should be extremely vigilant about the minimum use of Energy and maximum reduction of Pollution & Waste.
4. Education: We must be educated and educate our readers how to be eco-friendly and how efficiently use electricity, water, transportation and all other natural and manmade resources.

Apart from the above, a librarian may take the following initiatives which may help them in transforming a traditional library into a green library.

eFirst Policy
The eFirst policy is giving the priority of electronic documents over print documents while acquiring documents in library. The change of policy from print to digital has changed many processes and functions of library which are directly or indirectly eco-friendly and helps us protecting the environment by reducing paper consumption. We need to change the mindset of library professionals, clienteles and decision makers. Libraries must understand, adopt and implement the eFirst policy keeping in mind the following advantages;
1. Versatile features of digital documents, i.e., print, copy, share, carry & transfer, 24X7 easy access and dissemination;
2. Shift towards e-resources helps multiple and convenient access anywhere;
3. To adopt and promote the digital library culture among institute fraternity;
4. To protect the environment by reducing paper consumption;
5. Management of digital collection in IT age is more dynamic and convenient than print collection;
6. To facilitate the information demand of IT savvy fraternity;
7. An initiative to convert the institute into a digital institute.

Infrastructural Development and Green Building
We have to learn and apply the latest trends in green design, eco-friendly building and technology in libraries. We have to arrange for eco-friendly electronic and electric equipments such as light bulbs, fan, computers, printers, scanners etc. that save money and electricity. The doors and windows should be placed strategically which provide natural light and may help save heating or cooling costs. Provision should be made for ceiling fans to cool down the library without overusing the A/C. The design of eco-friendly building should ensure the natural air, light, proper ventilation, great heights, widths, open space, thick walls, use of sunshades and sustainable temperature. By following the eco-building norms, we may reduce the electricity and save the money of the organisation. When a new building for library is proposed, we need to follow the Green Building rating Agency guidelines such as GRIHA and standard codes of Green Building Standards of International Code Council -2012.

Technological Development and Information Resources
A library should procure an appropriate hardware, software and networks for developing an infrastructure which is most environmentally safe. We should choose the right computers and resources such as laptops use less electricity than desktop versions, products with the energy star ratings, buy recycled ink cartridges and other supplies, subscribe digital resources, procure eco-friendly eReaders with loaded collection, develop and design digital libraries, institutional digital repositories and dynamic websites embedded with web-2 tools. The almost details of library and library resources in full text should be provided online rather than providing in print form.
Cooperation and Collaboration.
In this digital age, the Libraries should share their information resources, services and facilities. Libraries should become the member of the consortia, networks or form small group of similer libraries to share their resources to minimize the expenditure, save the time and avoid duplicity of activities to save manpower.
Small libraries may create a community or group of Book Lovers who would love to read the books and ready to donate or share their personal books to library or other likeminded readers. The libraries may provide a special notice board to them for display of their list of personal books for sharing. This will enhance the faith and cooperation with library as well as among book lovers. And also it will reduce purchasing of extra books in library and also avoid duplicate purchasing of books among the group members.

Literacy and Awareness
First of libraries must update themselves about the green library objectives, functions and benefits and then start organising special events like environment literacy and orientation programmes, training & workshops, competitions & contests, online awareness schedule, etc. The libraries may seek for environmental grants to raise funds to achieve the objectives of green library. The libraries may ask their reader to bring in old newspapers and other papers to recycle and bring eco-friendly snacks and drinks that are bottled and packaged in eco-friendly materials, if needed. The libraries may celebrate April as a green month and display the green products; green policies and projects of government; certain grants available and awarded by environmental agencies for green projects and renovations; showcase your library’s green progress, exhibit example of national and international green library initiatives. The libraries may develop and maintain a green library blogs, FB accounts and create webpage’s on other social sites. These may be linked to networks which discuss natural disasters and global conflicts, ecosystem management, pollutants, resource efficiency, climate change, and more.

Day to day activities of library
A good library opens with dusting and cleaning activities therefore, it is highly expected from every library staff that each and every corner of the library from ceiling to floor, from each rack to each shelf, from technical section to circulation section, library is well cleaned. The libraries should circulate daily environmental news and trends electronically rather wasting paper. Instead of mailing out print newsletters, create e-mail campaigns to library announcements such as memos, reminders, articles, publications, new addition in library and events, etc. The libraries may hold meetings online through the virtual world rather asking them to present physically. The library should stop giving out bags and should encourage visitors to bring their own bags and stop using plastic ones. The library should stop pasting library ownership slip, due date slip, book card on the books and avoid giving print receipts to readers and ask them to discover their library account online. The staff members of the organisation or library should set up a car pool or van pool so that they can cut down on pollutants. If possible libraries should grow a garden, if space allowed; keep plants and flowers in library premises; color green eco-friendly in and outside of premises to spread awareness and constructive message. A good library always focus on day to day functions which includes use of durable technology, safe and/or natural pesticides, recyclable, re-usable and long-lasting equipments and items, as far as possible based on indigenous materials, energy efficient among other qualities.

We need to set up a Modal Green Library in each state of India that can be an example and encourage other libraries. We understand the knowledge that exists inside the human being, which just needs to spark the individual conscious; therefore, for a peaceful and congenial environment, library need to be converted into knowledge worship place and librarian need to be present himself as a guide, where a reader can attain the highest knowledge satisfaction with never lasting peace.
